10. TV BROADCASTING SCHEDULES

Further analysis was done on the broadcasting schedules provided to the Broadcasting Authority by each TV station at the start of this quarter.

The amount of hours spent by consumers watching their television-sets does not change more than 10% from season to another [see Table 8.5 and Figure 8.4 in the next chapter] while, on the other hand local television stations are losing their audiences to foreign television stations re-broadcast on local cable and digital aerial platforms especially during the summer months.

The audience shares listed in Table 7.3 above are a combination of two variables: the number of people watching a particular broadcasting station multiplied by the number of half-hour slots that each consumer has spent watching that particular TV station. Analysing and comparing the Audience Share of the main three local broadcasting stations [TVM, ONE and Net TV] with their percentage reach and the average number of hours that each station's viewers has consumed, it can be clearly seen that the relationship of these three variables are congruent/similar to each station's data. However, the rates of change of each assessment period differ from station to station and from period to period.

This data and its graphical representation is listed in Table and Figures 7.5.a-c below. Of note is that the summer periods of July-September 2009 to 2011 have seen a considerable decrease from each station's highest ratings at the start of each broadcasting season to those of their summer periods.

For each broadcasting season, the Authority requests the broadcasting schedules from each station licensed. Although programme-changes in each schedule are frequent, such modifications would only effect a particular time-slot and they very rarely affect the general programme content allotted to that particular time-slot. Thus it is common knowledge that, for example, children's programmes are always broadcast at around 4:30pm and although a programme series may end, this is replaced by another series of programmes of the same nature.

It is also common knowledge that during "night hours" the programmes broadcasts are the same as those broadcast during that same day. Besides, some popular programmes are also re-broadcast during different times at other days of the same schedule. Above this, popular programme series are often repeated in subsequent broadcasting schedules and, in some cases, this is done on different broadcasting stations in the case of farmed-out productions.

And, in the case of TVM and TVM2/Channel 22, both stations would broadcast simultaneously the same programme content – this being a programme repeat/re-run on one station and a "new" programme series on another station.

Having said this, the programme schedules of seven local broadcasting stations [TVM, TVM2/Education 22, ONE, Net TV, Smash TV, Favourite Channel, and Calypso TV] were analysed for the following types of broadcasts:

- Night Broadcasts; during which periods programmes broadcast during that same day are repeated;
- Same Day and/or Other Day Repeats within that same broadcasting week;
- Re-Runs of Programme that were first broadcast in previous broadcasting schedules;
- Teleshopping which in all the cases is a fully-farmed out programme;

and in the case of TVM

- Programme repeats from TVM and TVM2/Education 22 archives.

The broadcasting schedules were colour coded and can be found in Part Two of this report as Tables 10.a-g. Each colour-coded time-bracket was counted for each week-day and the results in total hours, together expressed as a percentage of the 24-hour clock, are listed in Table 7.6.a-g below for each broadcasting station.

Although it is common knowledge that TV programme-repeats are the norm during the summer periods, the extent of such repeats was not expected. Since no such previous data exists it would be superfluous to make any more statements/analysis. However, if monitored further, such levels could easily explain and verify the shift and levels of audiences attained by each local broadcasting station.
